5. Roster of directors and minutes of the board of directors' meeting; roster of managing directors and minutes of managing directors' meeting, if applicable;
6. Roster of supervisors and the minutes of supervisors' meeting; and
7. Other documents as required by the competent authority.

The deadline for application prescribed in the preceding paragraph may be extended once, provided the institution has justified reasons, an application for extension is submitted prior to the expiration of the deadline, and that such extension may not exceed three (3) months.

If a specialized electronic payment institution fails to apply for business license within the period provided in Paragraph 1 or the preceding paragraph hereof, the competent authority may revoke its approval.

If it is found after a specialized electronic payment institution has obtained a business license that its application for business license contains false information of a serious nature, the competent authority should revoke the granted approval and business license, and order the institution to turn in its business license within a specified period, or cancel its business license if the institution fails to turn in the license within the specific period.

A specialized electronic payment institution shall commence business operation within six (6) months after being granted a business license by the competent authority. However, the deadline for commencing business operation may be extended once, provided the request for extension has justified reasons and is approved by the competent authority, and that such extension may not exceed six (6) months.

Where a specialized electronic payment institution fails to commence business operations within the specified period provided in the preceding paragraph, the competent authority may revoke the granted approval and its business license, order the institution to turn in its business license within a specified period, or cancel its business license if the institution fails to turn in the license within the specific period.

Where a specialized electronic payment institution wishes to change the information stated on its business license, it shall apply for the approval of the competent authority and for the issuance of a new business license.

Article 14 An electronic payment institution shall notify the competent authority in writing within three (3) business days from the date it commences operation.

Article 15 A foreign institution may not engage in any business under the subparagraphs of Paragraph 1, Article 4 herein within the Republic of China, unless it has applied and obtained approval to establish an electronic payment institution according to this Act.

Where an institution cooperates with or assists an offshore institution to engage in activities inside the Republic of China associated with any businesses specified in Paragraph 1, Article 4 herein, it shall obtain the approval of the competent authority. Where an institution is approved by the competent authority, if it subsequently adds other partner offshore institution from the same country or region or assists such institution to engage in activities inside the Republic of China associated with any businesses specified in Paragraph 1, Article 4 herein, it shall file the fact to both the competent authority and the Central Bank within five (5) business days from the date it commences operation.

Regulations governing individuals and entities that the competent authority will grant approval to as described in the preceding paragraph, their qualifications, required documentation for application or reporting and registration, scope and modes of cooperating with or assisting foreign institutions to engage in activities inside the Republic of China associated with any business under Paragraph 1, Article 4 herein, operations management and other compliance matters shall be prescribed by the competent authority in consultation with the Central Bank.

The competent authority should assist domestic electronic payment institutions in developing offshore business in collaboration with foreign entities.

Chapter 3 Supervision and Administration

Section 1 Specialized Electronic Payment Institutions

Article 16 The balance of stored value funds deposited by each user and the amount of the domestic and foreign small-amount remittance processed by each user with a specialized electronic payment institution shall be prescribed by the competent authority in consultation with the Central Bank.

Where necessary, the competent authority may impose a constraint on the amount of transaction for businesses operated by specialized electronic payment institutions specified in Paragraph 1, Article 4 herein, and the amounts of constraint shall be determined by the competent authority in consultation with the Central Bank.

Article 17 A specialized electronic payment institution shall deposit the funds it receives from users into a dedicated deposit account in the same currency opened by it with a bank and accurately record the amounts of payment and transfer of funds in payment accounts.

The financial institution provided in the preceding paragraph shall manage the deposit, transfer, drawing and utilization of funds deposited by a specialized electronic payment institution and periodically file the relevant data of the institution's dedicated deposit account with the competent authority.

Regulations governing restrictions on the opening of dedicated deposit account provided in the first paragraph hereof, its management, operating mode, and other matters be to comply with shall prescribed by the competent authority.

Article 18 Except for court order or other regulations, a specialized electronic payment institution shall carry out transfer of funds according to the payment instructions agreed by users in advance or instantly without any delay, and nor accept a request from a third party for the suspension of payment or remittance, or other similar requests.

Article 19 When a user intends to withdraw from his/her payment account or a specialized electronic payment institution remits funds to a contracted institution, the specialized electronic payment institution shall not allow cash payments, but shall transfer the funds into a same-currency deposit account of the user or contracted institution in a financial institution. However, where the competent authority has other regulations, such regulations shall apply.

When a user intends to store value in a foreign currency, the specialized electronic payment institution shall transfer the stored value funds from the deposit account of the user's deposit account in a financial institution or the electronic payment account of the same electronic payment institutions, or transfer the funds through a rule approved by the competent authority in consultation with the Central Bank.

Article 20 Specialized electronic payment institutions shall deposit a sufficient amount of reserve when the combined NTD and foreign currency funds they receive from users reach a certain amount. Regulations governing the certain amount, percentage for the reserve, method of deposit, adjustment, audit and other matters to comply with shall be prescribed by the Central Bank in consultation with the competent authority.

Article 21 Specialized electronic payment institutions shall declare trust in full or obtain full guarantee from a bank for the users stored funds and for funds collected/paid as an agent. The required reserve shall be deducted from the said users stored funds.

A specialized electronic payment institution shall appoint an accountant to conduct quarterly audit of the state of compliance with the preceding paragraph, and submit the accountant's audit report to the competent authority for record in one (1) month after the end of each quarter.

The term "declare trust" referred to in Paragraph 1 hereof means the specialized electronic payment institution entering into a trust agreement with the bank at where it opens its dedicated deposit account to designate the dedicated deposit account as a trust account.

The mandatory and prohibitory provisions to be included in the trust agreement shall be prescribed by the competent authority.

The trust agreement referred to in Paragraph 3 hereof shall be deemed invalid, provided its clauses violate the mandatory and prohibitory provisions to be included as announced by the competent authority.

Mandatory provisions as announced by the competent authority that are not included in the trust agreement shall still constitute a part of the agreement.

The term "full guarantee from a bank" referred to in Paragraph 1 hereof means that the specialized electronic payment institution shall enter a full performance guarantee agreement with a bank where the bank guarantees the performance responsibility of the specialized electronic payment institution towards its users.

A specialized electronic payment institution shall complete the contract renewal or enter a new contract at least two (2) months before the expiration of the trust agreement or the guarantee agreement, and report the situation by letter to the competent authority for record.

A specialized electronic payment institution that fails to conform to the preceding paragraph will not be allowed to accept new users registration, enter into contracts with contracted institutions, or accept more funds from existing users.

Article 22 A specialized electronic payment institution may not draw or instruct the financial institution at which it opens its dedicated deposit account to draw on the funds received from users, except for any of the following circumstances:

1. Transfer of funds according to the payment instruction of a user.
2. Users withdrawing funds from their payment account or transferring funds to a contracted institution.
3. To utilize funds received from users in accordance with Paragraph 2 or Paragraph 3 hereof and to dispense or collect interest or other income earned thereof.

For “payments”, a specialized electronic payment institution may utilize it or instruct the financial institution at which it opens its dedicated deposit account to utilize it up to a certain percentage in any of the following manners:

1. Deposit it in banks.
  2. Purchase government bonds.
  3. Purchase treasury bills or negotiable certificates of deposit.
  4. Purchase other financial products approved by the competent authority.
- The financial institution at which the dedicated deposit account is opened shall dispense the interest or other income earned from the trust property, less costs, necessary expenses and loss, to the specialized electronic payment institution in the year of income occurred according to the trust agreement.

A specialized electronic payment institution shall set aside a certain percentage of the interest or other income earned from the utilization of funds received from users and deposit it in a dedicated account opened with a financial institution at which the dedicated deposit account is opened to pay back to the users or use it for other purposes prescribed by the competent authority.

The certain percentage referred to in Paragraph 2 hereof and the preceding paragraph shall be prescribed by the competent authority.

When the total value of funds received from users and utilized by a specialized electronic payment institution in accordance with Paragraph 2 hereof falls below the original amount of investment as assessed according to the generally accepted accounting principles, the institution shall forthwith make up the shortfall.

A specialized electronic payment institution shall appoint an accountant to conduct audit of the state of compliance with Paragraph 1, Paragraph 2, and Paragraph 4 hereof, and the preceding paragraph, and submit the accountant's audit report to the competent authority for record in two (2) months after the end of every half fiscal year.

The claims of the users and contracted institutions over their funds arising from the payments shall have precedence over the claims of other creditors of the specialized electronic payment institutions.

Article 23 For onshore businesses conducted by specialized electronic payment institutions, funds received from or paid to contracted institutions shall be settled and cleared in NTD.

For cross-border businesses, businesses specified in Subparagraph 4, Paragraph 1, Article 4 hereof, or related actions approved by the competent authority in accordance with provisions in Paragraph 2, Article 15 conducted by specialized electronic payment institutions, funds received from or paid to onshore users and contracted institutions may be settled and cleared in NTD or foreign currency, whereas funds received from or paid to offshore users should be settled in foreign currency.

Specialized electronic payment institutions that engage in businesses specified in the preceding paragraph and the subparagraphs of Paragraph 1 and Paragraph 2, Article 4 involving exchanges between different currencies shall disclose the exchange rates offered by the bank which they use as reference and the names of banks they work with on their websites.

Article 24 If deemed necessary, the competent authority may limit the total balance of funds received by specialized electronic payment institutions as a multiple of the institution's paid-in capital or net worth.

When the total balance of funds received by a specialized electronic payment institution as a multiple of the institution's paid-in capital or net worth does not meet the criteria set forth by the competent authority pursuant to the preceding paragraph, the competent authority may order the institution to increase capital or reduce the total balance of funds received within a specified period, and mete out other disciplinary actions or restrictions.

Articles 25 Specialized electronic payment institutions shall establish a user and contracted institution identity verification mechanism and retain the data obtained in the identification process. The verified user and contracted institution identification procedures must be implemented through a risk-based approach and must include a review of the beneficial owners.

The retention period for data obtained in user and contracted institution identification process referred to in the preceding paragraph shall be at least five (5) years after the termination or of the business relationship. Regulations governing the manner of establishment and process for user and contracted institution identity verification mechanism referred to in Paragraph 1 hereof, its management, scope of data to be obtained in the user and contracted institution identification process, and other related matters shall be prescribed by the competent authority in consultation with the Ministry of Justice and the Central Bank.

Article 26 Specialized electronic payment institutions shall retain necessary transaction records, including the user's stored value card numbers, electronic payment account numbers, transaction items, dates, amounts and currencies, as well as records on any uncompleted transactions. The necessary transaction records referred to in the preceding paragraph shall be retained for at least five (5) years after the termination or completion of transaction, or longer, provided longer period of retention is required according to other regulations.

The regulations on matters such as the scope and method of retaining necessary transaction records shall be prescribed by the competent authority in consultation with the Ministry of Justice, the Ministry of Finance, and the Central Bank.

When the tax authority or the customs ask, out of business needs, a specialized electronic payment institution to provide necessary transaction records provided in Paragraph 1 hereof and/or data obtained in the user and contracted institution identification process provided in Paragraph 1 of the preceding article, the specialized electronic payment institution may not refuse. The regulations on matters such as the scope of the necessary transaction records or data, method of provision, and method for determining refusal to provide such information shall be prescribed by the Ministry of Finance in consultation with the competent authority.

Article 27 The reporting of currency transactions exceeding a certain amount or suspected money laundering transactions by specialized electronic payment institutions, and the exemption from confidentiality obligations and penalties for violating reporting regulations of specialized electronic payment institutions and related personnel shall be processed in accordance with regulations in the Money Laundering Control Act.

Article 28 An electronic payment institution must obtain the permission of the competent authority to set up an overseas branch institution. The competent authority shall consult the Central Bank and obtain approval before granting permission.

Article 29 Specialized electronic payment institutions shall establish a mechanism for handling customer complaints and dispute settlement.

Article 30 The terms and conditions of the standard contract prepared by a specialized electronic payment institution for its electronic payment business shall comply with the mandatory and prohibitory provisions to be included in standard form contract for the business announced by the competent authority. The protections for consumer rights and interests provided in the standard contract shall not be less than those contained in template of standard form contract for electronic payment business prescribed by the competent authority.

Article 31 Specialized electronic payment institutions shall keep the transaction data and other related information of the users and contracted institutions confidential, unless it is otherwise required by law or the competent authority.

Article 32 A specialized electronic payment institution shall ensure the privacy and security of the transaction data and be responsible for the accuracy of data transfer, exchange, or processing.

A specialized electronic payment institution shall establish an information system that meets certain requirements. The standards for information system and security management of its businesses, and subsequent amendments thereto shall be prescribed by the trade association specified in Paragraph 1 of Article 44 or the Bankers Association of the Republic of China ("Bankers Association"), and reported to the competent authority for approval; the same procedure shall be required for changes.

Article 33 A specialized electronic payment institution shall establish an internal control and audit system; regulations governing the objectives, principles, policies, operating procedures, qualification requirements for internal auditors, scope of internal control audits undertaken by appointed certified public accountant, and other matters to comply with shall be prescribed by the competent authority.

Article 34 Specialized electronic payment institutions shall file business related reports in accordance with the rules of the competent authority and the Central Bank.

Specialized electronic payment institutions shall periodically deliver detailed schedule of their account operations to the financial institution at which they open their dedicated deposit account for the bank to check the deposit, transfer, drawing and utilization of funds received from users.

Article 35 A specialized electronic payment institution shall prepare business report and CPA-certified financial report or other financial documents designated by the competent authority within four (4) months after the end of a fiscal year, and submit the same to the competent authority and declare in fifteen (15) days after those reports have been passed in board of directors' meeting.

Article 36 Rules governing the business management and operating mode of specialized electronic payment institutions, user and contracted institution management, ways for users to give payment instructions, procedures for processing suspected illegal or obviously irregular transactions of electronic payment accounts or stored value cards, applications for permission to set up offshore branch institutions and their management, conditions for public issuance of securities, business outlets, outsourcing operation, restrictions on investment, approval of significant financial businesses and operations, reporting, and other matters to comply with shall be prescribed by the competent authority in consultation with the Central Bank.

The guidelines for the qualifications and requirements for the responsible person of an electronic payment institution, restrictions on concurrent posts, training, and other matters to comply with shall be prescribed by the competent authority.

An individual that does not meet the qualifications and requirements set forth in the guidelines specified in the preceding paragraph may not serve as a responsible person of an electronic payment institution; where such individual has taken the position of the said responsible person, he/she shall be discharged.

Article 37 The competent authority may at any time appoint a designee or entrust an appropriate institution to examine the business, finance or other relevant items of a specialized electronic payment institution, or order the specialized electronic payment institution to submit financial report, inventory of property, or other relevant information and reports within a specified period.

If deemed necessary, the competent authority may designate or request the electronic payment institution to appoint professional experts or technical personnel to inspect the items, reports or information subject to examination according to the preceding paragraph, and submit an inspection report to the competent authority. The expenses thus incurred shall be borne by the institution being inspected.

Article 38 If a specialized electronic payment institution violates laws or regulations, or its articles of incorporation, or is suspected of improper management, the competent authority may order it to correct or improve within a specified period, and may, depending on the severity of the circumstances, take the following disciplinary actions:

1. Revoke the resolutions adopted at the shareholders' meetings, board of directors' meetings or other statutory meetings;
2. Repeal the approval for part or all of the businesses of the specialized electronic payment institution;
3. Order the specialized electronic payment institution to relieve its managers or employees of their offices;
4. Dismiss its directors or supervisors, or suspend them from their duties for a certain period of time; and
5. Take other necessary disciplinary actions.

If a director or supervisor of a specialized electronic payment institution is dismissed pursuant to Subparagraph 4 of the preceding paragraph, the competent authority shall notify the competent authority of company registration to cancel the registration of such director or supervisor. The regulations in the two preceding paragraphs shall apply mutatis mutandis to those that are not electronic payment institutions but engage in foreign small-amount remittances and related foreign currency trading businesses described in Subparagraph 4, Article 4 in the event that they violate laws or regulations, or the articles of incorporation, or are suspected of disturbing sound operations.

Article 39 Where the accumulated loss of a specialized electronic payment institution exceeds one half (1/2) of its paid-in capital, the institution shall promptly report the fact to the competent authority in writing its financial statements and reasons for the loss.

The competent authority may require a specialized electronic payment institution in the situation as described in the preceding paragraph to replenish its capital or restrict its business operations; and order to cease its operation if the specialized electronic payment institution fails to replenish its capital as required within the specified period.

Article 40 If the business or financial conditions of a specialized electronic payment institution deteriorate significantly so that it might not be able to pay its debts or that the interests of users might be adversely affected, the competent authority may inform the relevant authorities or agencies to prohibit the specialized electronic payment institution, its responsible persons, or any of its employees from transferring, delivering, hypothecating or exercising other rights, or may also send a letter of request to immigration authority to prohibit such persons from leaving the country, or order the specialized electronic payment institution to transfer its businesses to another electronic payment institution.

When a specialized electronic payment institution is dissolved, closes down business, or suspends business, has its permit revoked or repealed, or is ordered to dissolve so that it becomes unable to continue its operation, the institution shall consult with other electronic payment institution(s) to take over its business, subject to the approval of the competent authority.

Where such specialized electronic payment institution fails to follow the provisions in the preceding paragraph, the competent authority will designate other electronic payment institution(s) to assume its business.

Article 41 To prevent specialized electronic payment institutions from damaging the interests of consumers by failing to deliver trust or obtain full performance guarantee from a bank, electronic payment institutions shall set aside funds to the establishment of a sinking fund.

When a specialized electronic payment institution runs into financial difficulty, thereby becoming insolvent and breaching its contract, the sinking fund may, in the capacity of a third person, repay the consumers, and from the time of making repayment, assume the rights of the consumers within the extent of repayment.

Regulations governing the organization, management and repayment operation of the sinking fund shall be prescribed by the competent authority.

Respective specialized electronic payment institution shall allocate a certain percentage of its business income to the sinking fund; the certain percentage will be prescribed by the competent authority in consideration of the economic and business conditions and the affordability of respective specialized electronic payment institution.
